HELPING MAKE PRODUCTS BETTER™

September 5, 2008

SRN Band Members,

The purpose of this letter is to offer my enthusiastic recommendation of the SRN Band for any special occasion or corporate event. As the National Strategic Account Manager for a large Fortune 500 Company, I have organized and facilitated many special events for my customers. When arranging such an event, it is foremost to consider the diversity of the audience, venue, budget and timing of activities. Most importantly, the goal is to appeal to as many attendees as possible.

In April of 2008, I hired the SRN band to perform at a large corporate event at the Sanibel Island Resort and Spa. This is an annual conference in which my company hosts a large group of very important customers. The attendees vary greatly in age and hail from a variety of social, financial and cultural backgrounds. The final evening of the 4-day event culminates with some type of entertainment or speaker. Over the years, I have hired comedians, motivational speakers and industry specific experts. This year I hired the SRN Band whom I have seen in many local venues, and some private affairs in the Indianapolis area. I must compliment you by saying your band was the best entertainment we have enjoyed thus far, and yielded the most compliments, accolades and requests for a return future engagement. Normally on the last evening of the conference, attendees retire early in order to be available and rested for early flights home the next morning. This year was much different as our customers refused to abandon the fabulous time they were having dancing and listening to a great band performing great music. I was exceptionally pleased and impressed with the performance of SRN Band. I especially appreciated the manner in which the band involved the audience in their performance. You successfully managed to engage every member of the audience in some way. Those that were least likely to get on a dance floor were the exact ones that refused to leave it.

In closing, I avidly offer my endorsement and recommendation of the SRN Band as an extraordinary band for any corporate or private event. Any potential host or facilitator should choose your band and mark off entertainment from their to-do list. They will not be disappointed.

Sincerely,
